Good Turnout for Comprehensive Plan Open House

Lots of information to consider

By: Sam Clanton
Posted: Thursday, August 12, 2010

A comprehensive plan to address growth management and economic development in the city of Branson was the topic of an informational open house Thursday evening at the Branson Convention Center.

The city has hired a group out of Colorado to help volunteers and city officials create a comprehensive plan. Becky Zimmerman of Design Workshop surveyed the more than 100 people who attended the open house...

Results were available immediately, and the response to that question was number one, the threat of losing community values; and number two, the longtime viability of Highway 76 businesses.

If you'd like to participate in the process, fill out a survey online at www.bransoncompplan.com. Information you provide ultimately will be used to govern the direction of city policy as it pertains to land use, economic development, infrastructure, historic preservation and more...

Branson Chamber President Ross Summers adds his remarks.

The website also contains information about upcoming events associated with the drafting and completion of Branson's comprehensive plan. Additional "visioning" workshops are planned in October.

Once implemented, the plan will provide the context for which future capital improvement investment decisions can be made.
